Yesterday's game between St. Paul and Omaha, while it did not scintillate exactly like a Kohinoor, was a very interesting af-St. Paul won, of course, the score being 9

St. Paul 9, Omaha 5.

The noteworthy features of the Black Sox's play were Joe Walsh's brilliant stops and throws, and general all-round work. That boy is playing the game out of sight For St. Panl, every man did his duty and did it nobly, but one little excusable error by Werrick marring their score.

Harrahan has been released and gone to his home near Troy, N. Y.

A few more of them will be wending the same way with their papers in their inside pocket about next Tresday morning.

The same teams play three games today, one this morning at 10:30 and two this afternoon, the latter two for one admission. Young Jellen of the Nonparells will pitch

In the last game.

Tomorrow the season closes, and everybody must go out and see Dan Horin play right geld. He will also captain the team.

A Baseball Revolution Predicted. BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 27.—[Special Telegram to THE BEE.]—Vice President Waltz of the Baltimore baseball ciub has returned from the west. He says that there will be a great revolution in baseball circles this fall. A scheme is to form a strong American asso ciation of eight clubs, dropping out some of the smaller cities and supplying their places with clubs from larger and livelier towns. An important meeting of the Boston club management will be held as soon as Captain Powers and his players get back to the city from their western trip.

Protests of the Defendants Against Magistrate Shannon Ignored. DUBLIN, Sept. 27 .- There is no abatement of interest in the trial of the conspiracy cases against the nationalist leaders now i progress at Tipperary. Rosan, crown prose cutor, finished his opening speech this morning. It was the desire of the crown prosecutor that the cases should be tried sep arately. To this the defendants unitedly objected, urging the court to hear all the case The magistrates at last yielded t the persistency of the defendants, and decided in favor of a collective hearing.

The sensational feature of the morning was the renewed attack by the defendants on Magistrate Shannon. It will be remembered that on Thursday both John Dillon and William O'Brien protested against Shannon's sitting in the case and gave reason why they thought he might be biased in hi judgment where they were concerned. The peremptory manner in which these protests were decided of no weight was very exasperating to the nationalists. They decided after a careful consultation, to brin after a careful consultation, to brin before the court their objections to Shanno in an informal way. A statement was mad in the form of an affidavit to which each o the defendants affixed his signature and too

The magistrates, who had received no in timation of the purpose of the defendants were taken completely by surprise When it was presented this morning as soon as they understood the nature of the document they peremptorily declined to receive it. When the preliminary matters were disposed of and the time had come for taking testimony to begin, it was found that two of the defendants were not in the court room. A short recess was thereupon taken to give time for the absent ones to be summoned It was subsequently decided to adjourn the case until Monday without taking any testi-

Mayor Epps welcomed the knights of the grip, and Secrewelcomed the kingles of the grap, and secretary Ames of the State Traveling Men's as sociation responded. After the speech making they all repaired to Riverside park where two nines from the pligrims of programs. ress contested for victory and furnished loads of fun for the spectators. A luncheon was tendered them in the evening just previous to a special musical programme furnished them in the palace.

A Strange Story.

RED OAK, Ia., Sept. 27 .- [Special Telegram to THE BEE.]-John Biddick, the twentyyear-old son of a well-to-do farmer living twelve miles east of here, arrived home this morning after a mysterious absence of two days, and tells a story of highway robbery and kidnapping that is a curious contribution to criminal history. On Thursday morning he left home to go to the coal banks, some ten miles away, and on Thursday evening, when an older brother, who is teaching school, arrived home he found a note sticking in the eyhole of the door in his brother' writing, and reading as follows:
"God forgive me. My mind is failing me and I can't control myself. I must leave. I must work for Christ and in the end will meet you all in

The note was signed "John," and to it were added three postscripts: "Will be back soon if Christ will let me." "Take the team up and help father." "Christ is calling me now." The young man is known as steady and well balanced, and his relatives were completely mystified by the note and much worried.

The young man's story is that on the way to the coal banks he met a covered wagon in which were three men. One of them got out as he approached. The distance to Red Oak was inquired, and as the boy turned his head to reply he found himself facing a revolver. He was robbed of some money, bound and blindfelded, and put in the covered wagon. One of the men took charge of his team, and learning where the older brother lived, the team was left there and the boy was made to write the note found. The men took him with them, but on the following day when the party stopped for supper the boy made his escape, getting away when sent with one of the men to gather firewood. He found himself forty miles from home. Making his way to a railroad station he boarded a freight way to a railroad station he boarded a freight train and was enabled to reach home this morning. He describes the men and says the wagen is painted blue on the outside and red nside. Officers are out after the men.

> "No trouble at all. We have already filled Washington park and the Midway plaisance and area half a mile into Jackson park. The plan is to place in the 110 acres of Washington park all the main buildings, including the state buildings. The space and ground there suitable for them, and building can begin without any filling or preliminary work. Moving east into eighty acres of the Midway plaisance there is a place for building streets from cities in different parts of the world and locating on them historic houses. that portion of Jackson park south of the Midway plaisance will be a place for vistas. There is a broad stretch of land there in overy way suitable. There can be built a facsimile of the tomb of Washington at Mount Vernon; the pyramid of Cheops, over four nundred feet high, can be constructed just like the original, with the tomb of Pharaoh inside and the sorcophagus. That will also be the place for a representation of the home of Shakespeare at Stratsford-on-Avon, the house of Robert Burns, and Mary, queen of Scots', apartments at Holyrood. The Jews might be induced to build Solemon's temple. and if the French were invited to do so, I think they would gladly reproduce the Bastile. We may not have the variety of sculpture and paintings that were at Paris, but I have no doubt that if the matter is rightly managed we may seeme many paintings of the old masters. They would be willingly loaned if their safety could be guaranteed, but that cannot be absolutely done. A picture may be insured, but no amount of money could ever replace the Immaculate Conception at Madrid, for instance. Where the paint-ings were only to be conveyed a short distance, as at Paris, and then placed in a fire proof vault, they were safe, but the accidents of an ocean voyage cannot be so readily guarded against. Still many will be allowed to come here. There will be sufficient to satisfy the most fastidious, at any rate. This is not to be for dilettanti; it is to be a popular exposition for the people. The Europeans will come here; there is no occasion for being distressed about them. There are a few people in Europe like Gladstone, Castellar and arck, whose large sympathies and ment would prompt them to sentiment wisit this country. Castellar, who is almost as prominent as Gladstone, has assured me that he will come in 1893.

PADDOCK AND THE TARIFF. How the Nebraska Senator Will Cast

His Vote. WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 .- [Special Telegram to THE BRE.]-There was a genuine sensation this morning at the announcement made last night by Senator Paddock that if his was the only vote cast against the conference report on the tariff bill be should cast it as a republican and a protectionist, because he believed that the interests of the west had been shamefully slighted by the conference committee. The senator was besieged by correspondents this morning, and to all of them be gave the answer that he meant exactly what he said in his last night's interview, and that in the position which he assumed he believed that he would receive the support of the re-publicans of the northwest. Today several northwestern senators, after conferences with Senator Paddeck, have indicated their intention to stand by him in the position which he has assumed. All of them take the ground occupied by Senator Paddeck that the struggle of the northwestern senators for s proper adjustment of duties and results se-cured through weeks of long debate have been largely nullified by the action of the conference committee, upon which there was but one far-western republican.

Senators Plumb, Ingalls and Petti-grew this afternoon indicated their approval of Senator Paddock's position and their intention to join him in the attempt to throw the bill into another conference, through which free binding twin-can be secured and a proper protection given to the beet sugar industry of the west. They with Senator Paddock, denounced the adop-tion of the house schedule on metals, by which heavy reductions made on steel rails and iron for building purposes have been wiped out for the benefit of Pennsylvania manufacturers and to the detriment of cheaper transportation by rail in the west. A large number of republican associates have been carnestly pleading with the sen-atorall day and asking that he recede from the position he has assumed. On the other hand, Senator Paddock has received a number of dispatches from Nebraska, from prom inent republicans, urging him to stand firm on behalf of the interests of the state which he has been sent to Washington to represent.
Tonight Senator Paddock said: "I have nothing to add to what I said last evening. The political influence of my position so far as it concerns myself is nothing to me. I am as it concerns myself is nothing to me. I am confident that I um representing republican sentiment in Nebrasia and the northwest and republican interests throughout the west. I believe that it is time for the republican senators and repre sentatives of that great section to make themselves felt, however feeble, even if only by protest in the consideration and passag of economic measures which most vitally ef feet their constituencies. I shall not permit New York, Pennsylvania or Ohio to dictate to me the equality of my republicanism. I am not responsible to the people of New York, Pennsylvania or Ohio, but I am to the good people of Nebraska. I have tried during the tariff debate to voice what I believe to be the wants and wishes of the sec tion of the country which in part I have the honor to represent, and I shall do se, subject only to the criticism of my own con science, and I believe that if the republican senators of the northwest will stand firm by me in this position which I have assumed, that we can secure another conference and receive these concessions which we demand and which we have a right to receive. If not, and the bill passes, my vote at least— and I believe those of several others—will be east in protest against what I believe to be an inequitable adjustment of duties so far as they represent our section of the country."

The conferees on the tariff bill adopted

Senator Manderson's amendment, sistained by Paddock, reducing the duty on white pine lumber $1 per 1,000; also Manderson's amendment reducing the duty on pine shin-gles to 20 cents per 1,000, and that reducing the duty on pine clapboardsho $1 per 1,000. This is a great victory wrung from the north-western lumber men by the Nebraska semators. Their fight for the beet sugar industry was very successful, but the fixing of the "duty free" standard by the conferees at all below 16 degrees, while it will give people the common brown or yellow grade from Germany free, will work a hard-ship to the beet sugar industry because it lets in that great surplus of German beet sugar free that is to be dumped on us just at a time when Nebraska farmers and capitalists are disposed to embark in a new industry that promises great pecuniary results, and it will hardly give the people their sugar any cheaper -certainly not the better class of sugars that have come to be used so generally on the score of its superior quality and quantity when weighed out, the better sugars being The conference agreed to Mr. Mandryer. derson's amendment to let in free beet sugar machinery until July 1, 1892, and he also got th conference committee to agree to a clause im posing an additional 1-10 of a cent per pound on certain sugar coming in from any country that levied an export bounty like France and Germany to stimulate the farmer there to produce beets. The senate bill fixed the county on beet sugar at 2 cents for all sugars showing 8) degress polariscope test. The conference report gives 2 cents bounty on a 90 degrees test and 154 cents on 80 degree and above up to 90 degrees test. The senat bill fixed the duty on sugar at 31-10 of 1 cent on all above 13 degrees and not over 16 de-grees, and at 6-10 of 1 cent on all above 16 degrees. The conference report fixes a duty of 51-10 of 1 cent on all over 16 degrees and 1 1-10 cents additional on all imported from a country levying an export bounty. The sen-ate bill made the bounty provision take effect March 1, 1891. The conference makes it April 1. The senate bill allowed sugar generally to be refined in bond between February 1 and March 1. The conference report allows only sugar not above 16 degrees to be so refined between March I and April 1.

FORCED TO MARRY OR DIE. Strange and Sensational Story Told by an Abused Nebraska Wife.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27 .- Mrs. Clara Wash burne's life since she was married seven weeks ago has not been a happy one. "I live in Grand Island, Neb., Mrs. Washburne said yesterday, "and met my husband while visiting friends in Chicago some six months ago. He was very attentive to me but I did not fancy him. My visit over, I returned home. Early in August I was surprised by receiving a visit from Washburne. He told me plainly that he came to marry me and that I would either return to Chicago as his bride or leave the house in a wooden box. I did not believe that he leved me at all and that his only design was to ruin me. I re fused to become his wife. My mother wa afraid he would carry out his threat and kill me and urged me to marry him. One day he came to the house with a derical-looking man, who proved to be Rev. M. Reed, pastor of the First Baptist church of Grand Island. He called me into the hall and said that I must mary him then and there or die Mother ag in urged me to become his wife and I reluctantly consented. The ministe performed the coremony and left. We started on our wedding trip, but I hid myself in a room at the hotel for two days. Then he found me and coaxed me into coming into Chicago. We went to the Briggs House. Washburne had no money, neither had I, and a day or two after our arrival he deserted me. a day or two after our arrival he deserted me.

I made inquiries and found out that Washburne's real name was E. J. Edwards, and that for five or six years he had been living with a woman at 198 North Clark street.
Then I went home. Two weeks later Washburne appeared again at my home. I consented to return, but did so simply to prosesented to return, but did so simply to prosecute him in the courts. I had left my trunks with the Chicago & Northwestern as security for a ticket home. He represented himself as an express agent and secured the trunks, but got them tack on a writ of replevin."

MISS FRANCES WILLARD.

She Addresses an Audience of Ladies at the Y. M. C. A. Building.

Miss Frances Willard, president of the Women's Christian Temperance union of the world, addressed an immense audience of ladies at the Young Men's Christian associaon building yesterday afternoon at 3:30 department of the work in which she is engaged, but gave a general talk of unusual interest and remarkable for its womanly dignity and Christian gentleness. The address was listened to from beginning to close with the most profound attention by all present.
Miss Willard said at the beginning that she was delighted with what she had seen of Omaha. It reminded her somewhat of herown city, Chicago. She then spoke a few words of commendation relative to Miss Gordon, who travels with her and talks to She told of her own first inspiration to begin the temperance work away back in 1877, when she was asked to address a great gathering at Chicago in the Moody tabrnacle. Prior to this time Miss Willard said she had simply looked upon the temperance work with a sort of good will, as though it was the work of somebody away off some where and all very well in its place. She had never experienced any personal interest

"But at that meeting," said the lady, "the "But at that meeting," said the ady, the loose cords of my mind got screwed up to concert pitch and I felt from that day that I had a work to do. I was then teaching in the Evanston university, and when I decided to leave that beautiful flower, and when I decided to leave that beautiful flower, and when I decided to leave that beautiful flower, and when I was engaged is the educational work, one of the dear creatures said to me: 'How can you leave us and o out in the world to work for drunkards? That was a narrow view of the matter, but I did not then realize how narrowit was. I for support. Emerson's father is foreman in have learned since that it is far more grand a large collar factory. Miss Willard then related a number of in cidents illustrative of the benefits that flow from temperance reformation, and of what ittle use, but take a number of beards and bind them firmly together, shape them right and place in the center a heart of fire in the shape of a steam engine and you have the stately ship. U. were largely those who have een driven from their homes by intoxicate 1 husbands, brothers or fathers. This is not the case. The women of the union are those This is not who have sympathetic hearts and a desire to pley ate the standard of human life. The speaker closed by urging every lady to identify herself with the great temperance and to do all inher temperance and to do all power to further the work before them in

TRACEDY MYSTERIOUS

Two Young Men, One Dead, the Other Dying, Found in a Freight Car.

PROBABILITY THAT BOTH WERE MURDERED

The Wounded Man Dies Without Regaining Consciousness and Leaving the Affair in Darkness-Who They Were.

CHEYEXNE, Wyo., Sept. 27 .- [Special Telegram to THE BEE . - About noon today, when a west-bound freight train stopped at Hillsdale, a short distance east of Cherenne. a brakeman heard grouns coming from one of the freight cars. Opening the doors, he was horrifted to find a young and well dressed man lying just inside the door in an unconscious condition. Blood trickled from a wound in his right temple. The car was partly filled with railroad ties. A further investigation discovered another young man dead and lying on some ties near the roof and at one end of the car Both men had their shoes off and, as their shoes were new, it is supposed they had hurt their feet. Both men were respect ably dressed, one of them exceedingly so.

When the train reached Cheyenne the bodies were removed, one to the morgue and the other to the hospital. It was then discovered that both men had been shot in the right temple and in almost precisely the same spot. The revolver, a common 32-calieer, was found by the side of the dead man. Upon being searched, nothing except 25 cents in money and two cheap shirt-studwere found upon the young man taken to the hospital. Printed on the flap of the o'clock. The lady took no special theme or bosom of his shirt was the same W. B. Emerson and it is supposed that this is his correct name. He was unconcious from the time of his discovery until his death, which occurred at 6 o'clock this evening.

On the person of the dead man was found a pocket book, on which was stamped the parme of Ross Fishbaugh. In the pocket book was found two letters of recommendation, one from Charles W. Gregg, room 18, Chamber of Commerce, St. Joseph, Mo., dated a year ago, and another from the R. T. Davis Mill company of the same city, dated only a few days ago. It also contained a railroad receipt for a value, which Fishbrugh had shipped from St. Joe to Denver. It is therefore supposed that both men came from St. Joe. They beara very respectable appearance. Emerson s, apparently, about sinetem and Fishbaugh twenty-two years of age. When starting they had evidently made some preparations for their comfort on the way. The tic covered with several armloads of hay.

A special from St. Joe says Emerson and Fishbaugh left there last Monday for Denver in search of employment. Fishbaugh's mother is a widow and depended on her son formed of the tragedy, but can give no explation of it.
